

3rd Sunday Running

Once again the weather put paid to our Sunday operation.

It started to rain just as I was leaving home and eased off about the half-way mark but only to start again just after my arrival at the club and didn't let up until mid-afternoon. But the worst part was the bitterly cold wind that came with it. At one stage I went out to the car to retrieve an item and for the hell of it had a look at temperature gauge and it read just 9°, but I think the wind-chill factor would have been lower. On the journey in to town I decided not to get any sausages and as it proved it was a wise decision.

Despite the cold, etc, member turnout would have to be a near record of 18 members. Most of the time there was more members than riding public.

There was, however, only one brave owner of a steam loco that turned up. The cold weather give an added effect to the steam from the funnel.

Despite the cold there were a few requests for sausages, which after explanation of why there were none they were sympathetic to our predicament. But there is always one! "You have always sold sausages on running days" was the cry emitted. Too bad said I, I wasn't going to get all wet, etc.
